South Suburban Kicks off New Preschool Arts Programs with Free Event; Performance by Katherine Dines, Award-Winning Children's Songwriter

South Suburban's Lone Tree Recreation Center is kicking off its new preschool arts programs on Tues., Sept. 17 from 4 – 5:30 pm, with a free event called Preschool Arts Commotion, featuring a performance by Katherine Dines, creator of the Hunk-Ta-Bunk-Ta series of children's recordings, and a special art activity available for children and parents.

South Suburban's new preschool arts programs include art and music classes for toddlers through age five. Some are parent-tot classes, like Curious about Art and Mud Puppies Clay. Programs will take place at Lone Tree Recreation Center.

A Colorado resident, Katherine Dines tours nationally and throughout the world. Her performances captivate audiences of all ages, and include a unique combination of movement, sign language, storytelling, humor, multicultural instruments, zany props and theatre.

The performance of Katherine Dines is provided by Think 360 Arts Complete Education and the Scientific Cultural Facilities District. Lone Tree Recreation Center is located at 10249 Ridgeway Circle, in Lone Tree. For more information call 303-708-3513, or visit www.sspr.org.
